

Did you flee Ukraine, but you're not a Ukrainian citizen?

Get financial support to help build a new future

Are you staying in the Netherlands under the Temporary Protection Directive (TPD), but you are not a Ukrainian citizen and have no permanent asylum or residence permit for Ukraine? Then your right to residence under the TPD will probably end on 4 March 2023.¹ You may be eligible for the temporary remigration policy.

In this flyer you read more about the remigration policy and the assistance and financial support for your future in your country of origin or a country outside the European Union. Talk to the staff at the Dutch Repatriation and Departure Service (DT&V) about your situation and possibilities for return or emigration.

Assistance and financial support

DT&V can offer you help in the following ways:

-  • Advice and information about repatriation and return.
-  • One-way airline ticket.
-  • Assistance during your departure from Schiphol Airport.
-  • Financial support, to be received at Schiphol Airport:
 - € 5.000 per person if you apply between 15 November and 31 December 2022 and leave the Netherlands within one month of applying;
 - € 2.000 per person if you apply between 1 January and 1 February 2023 and leave the Netherlands within one month of applying.

Who is eligible?

- You have/had a (temporary) residence permit for Ukraine.
- You were registered in the Personal Records Database (BRP) of a Dutch municipality before 19 July 2022.
- You agree to cooperate with the DT&V by providing or releasing the necessary information and following instructions relating to my departure.
- You declare in writing in the application or at a later stage, but before departure, that you withdraw any pending residency procedures and, in the case of a residence permit, waive the right to residence.
- Your departure from the Netherlands would not mean the cancellation of any criminal prosecution or extradition charges involving you.
- You are a citizen of a third country, not Ukraine, an EU Member State, Australia, Canada, Iceland, Japan, Korea, Mexico, New Zealand, the United States or Switzerland.
- You possess a valid travel document with which departure to your country of origin or another country outside the European Union for which you hold long-term residence status, can actually be realised.

Sign up before the deadline!

You can only receive assistance under the return policy if you apply before 1 February 2023. You can apply from 15 November 2022 via www.dienstterugkeerenvertrek.nl/remigratiebeleid.

Do you have any questions? Please send an email with your questions to: remigratiebeleid@dtv.minvenj.nl. Our staff will contact you directly.

¹ Unless you have a temporary residency permit on grounds of national or international protection or residency under the TPD as a family member.
